

Was the Festival a Success?

By SANDY MCGOWAN

This year Ramona held its first annual Spring Festival. Its main purpose was to break the daily monotony of going to school every day, and many students thought it did its job very well. There were numerous assemblies to get people out of class, and at lunch there were booths to spend your money on. There was a parade around the campus, and a dance at 6:30 in the morning. At lunch the boys paid 25¢ for three tries at dumping a girl in a tank of water.

Was the Spring Festival a success? On the whole, one would say it was. The majority of students looked forward to the activities, and participated in them with enthusiasm. Those who went to the assemblies found most of them to be very enjoyable.

The Spring Festival also provided the various clubs of Ramona with the opportunity to raise money. They set up booths at lunch to sell food, popcorn, candy, and just plain fun. In addition, the clubs were able to nominate their candidate for Spring Queen, and to support her.

If anyone were more qualified to give praise or criticism to the Spring Festival, it would be the student body. What do you think? Was it a success? Will we have another one next year?
